

Clinical Team update:

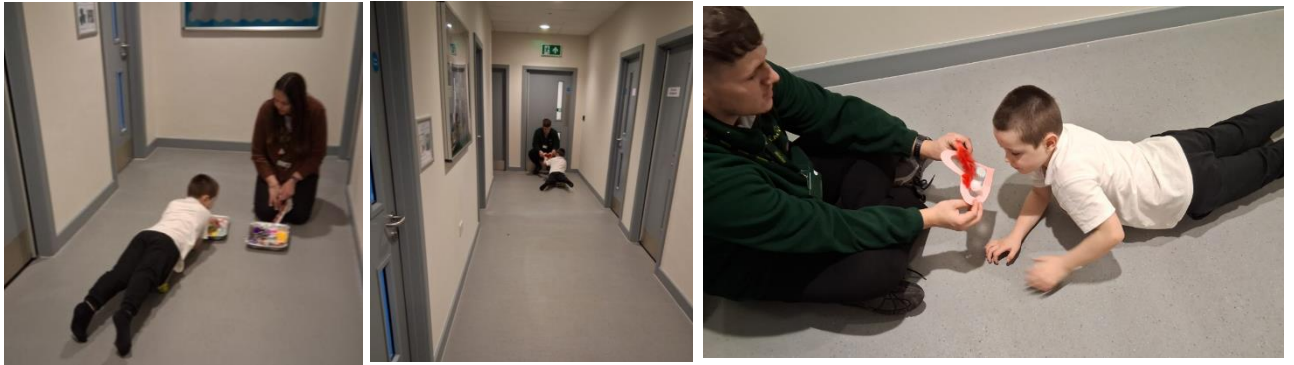

This week, 'love' has been in the air in our valentine's activities.

With the help from Jane, our chef, the children have decorated their own heart shaped biscuits which we then enjoyed together at snack time. Jane has also made a special biscuit for each child which has been sent home with them.

We've explored different textures whilst decorating our heart window decorations. One of our children even did this whilst on their scooter board! This required lots of co-ordination and for the children to use their upper body muscles.

On Thursday, some of the children visited the therapy room where we explored oobleck! We took it in turns to feel what items were hidden underneath and modelled our communication board when we found them.

We hope you all have a brilliant half term holiday – see you soon!
